When you look back at 2018, which moments stand out for you?

Did you celebrate a milestone birthday, a birth, graduation or wedding in the family? Or, did you have what seemed to be an insignificant moment that later became a powerful memory?

Our patients experience big and small moments each day that define their health care experience. A young woman escapes the reality of her cancer diagnosis while she sings and plays guitar. A father earns his certificate of completion from cardiac rehab following a heart attack. A mother takes her baby home for the holidays after a year in the hospital.

You help make these moments possible. You support their experience by giving to Marshfield Clinic Health System. In this special 2018 Gratitude Report issue, we’re celebrating all the ways you define care beyond treatment for patients we serve.

In this regard, you’ll see your best moments of 2018 on page 20, showing how you impacted patients last year. You’ll also read on page 2 about how your support of care close to home brings families like the Doines together.

On page 8, you’ll read about how you make miracles possible for this year’s Miracle Children at Marshfield Children’s Hospital – Morgan, Michael, Amaya, Isaac and Noah.

And, you will see on page 4 how your support for heart care helped Don’s life and inspired him to do even more good for others.

When you attend our events and volunteer fundraisers, you share moments of incredible impact in our communities. In this issue, you’ll read about ways that impact is felt for families across central and northern Wisconsin.

You also advance innovation through groundbreaking studies on multiple sclerosis (page 12) and support vaccine safety to keep people healthy (page 6). Those moments of discovery happen because of you.

With your help, moments like these and so many more add up to enrich lives for our patients. So please know that as we reflect on 2018 and look forward to tomorrow, we are thankful for you.

With gratitude,

P.S.

You enrich lives in amazing ways by supporting Marshfield Clinic Health System. That’s why moving forward, we want you to know more about the patients you help. You’ll see changes in BenchMarks to better highlight your impact. Watch for a year in review “Gratitude Report” issue each spring, sharing your biggest accomplishments and highlights from the previous year. You will see two additional issues each year featuring our best stories about your gifts at work.
The Doine family is inspired to give back to the community, thanks to people like you.

Home is where the family is

Care close to home inspires Doines to give back
Surrounded by his wife, son and daughter-in-law, Ron “Digger” Doine’s eyes light up as he shares stories about teaching his kids and grandkids the family business, just as his father taught him.

“The kids learn from their dad, but they really go right past dad to grandpa,” said daughter-in-law Tacey. “Those hours spent together are the happiest times of their lives.”

The Doines know time with family is a gift since their bond has strengthened through good times and hardships. Their family has relied on health care close to home and research that helps find answers to questions that move health care forward. Gifts from people like you assure that’s as close as possible.

“Our family has always been thankful for Marshfield Clinic. My care team took great care of me when I had kidney and back surgery,” said Digger. “But what really got me inspired to support the Clinic was Dr. Dean Emanuel caring for my dad, who had a heart attack when he was 51. Because of the heart programs at Marshfield Medical Center he lived another 14 years.”

Ron’s wife, Diane, is a breast cancer survivor. Breast cancer programs that people like you support helped her along her journey.

“I was diagnosed with cancer in 2001 and in treatment at Marshfield Clinic for a year,” she said. “Care I received and the community’s generosity was truly amazing.”

Despite these bumps in the road, Digger and Diane haven’t slowed down. Along with their son, Brad, his wife, Tacey, and their two sons, the family has built Doine Excavating into a thriving third-generation business.

“The Doines are hardworking, down to earth and incredibly generous people,” said Tiffany Halan, Marshfield Clinic Health System Foundation director of operations. “They are true leaders in setting an example of what it means to run a family business, give back to the community and have quite a bit of fun along the way. They take an enormous amount of pride in helping others and that absolutely continues to carry through each generation.”

Doine Excavating has been a proud sponsor of several Health System Foundation events for 14-plus years. Their support of Fore the Kids has helped provide after-school programs through Youth Net, a new Mental Health Patient Navigator position and funds for patients in need.

They support Auction of Champions, the annual gala benefiting the National Farm Medicine Center because the Farm Center is important to the Doine family. Living in rural Wisconsin and owning an excavating business means they have seen firsthand the potential dangers of agricultural careers.

“We care a lot about helping farmers and their families, especially when it comes to keeping kids safe,” said Digger.

The Doines give back personally, too. Since retiring from her career at Marshfield Medical Center, Diane volunteers at the Starbucks coffee cart in the hospital’s lobby. They have also supported Angel Funds that help patients in need with non-medical expenses like travel costs, utilities, mortgage payments and more while they undergo treatment.

The next generation is also highly motivated to help.

“My sister is my inspiration to support Marshfield Clinic,” said Tacey. “She had a mitrovalve replacement 30 years ago and now works in the Cath Lab to help others who have also gone through similar experiences.”

Besides the Health System, the Doines also support the Opportunity Development Center, their church, the local library, Marshfield High School athletics and more in the Marshfield community.

“We are very fortunate,” said Brad. “This is a great community, it’s like a family and it has supported us the whole way. That’s why it’s so important to us to give back.”

And for the Doines, nothing is more important than faith, family and friends.
Don Nystrom is quick-witted, quick to take action and most of all, quick to lend a hand to those in need.

Following retirement from Marshfield Clinic Health System after 32 years, he found plenty of ways to stay busy as a guy on the go.

In the summer of 2016, though, Don thought a lack of energy was simply the result of aging and naps became more common.

“One day I got very, very tired,” said Don. “I told my wife, Barb, ‘I think I have to lie down.’ I laid down and passed out.”

Don was having a heart attack.

Barb did not hesitate to call 911 and Don was transported to Marshfield Medical Center–Marshfield’s (MMC) Emergency Department. After evaluation he was rushed to the Cath Lab where Cardiologist Dr. Shereif Rezkalla placed three stents in Don’s heart. Three weeks later, Don underwent quintuple bypass surgery.

Don had access to lifesaving heart care close to home, thanks in part to people like you.

After a few days in the Marshfield hospital followed by months of cardiac rehab, Don was back on his feet. He soon found the perfect way to stay active and give back - volunteering at the Marshfield Hospital.

Stationed at the Hospital’s information desk, Don greets guests with a welcoming smile, gives them directions and often escorts them to their destinations. “I like to share helpful information about Marshfield Medical Center and the community,” said Don. “I try to put visitors at ease during what is often a tense situation.”

“He’s always been someone who likes to do things to help other people,” said Barb. “But I’ve noticed he does so even more now.”

“Volunteering gives me a sense of purpose,” said Don. “Everyone should have the experience of volunteering. It makes you a better, happier person and helps others.”

The Nystroms give back and are role models for their children and grandchildren who take the lessons to heart. For example, their son, Al, is a Marshfield Clinic Health System Foundation Board member. He helps organize Mike’s Run, a run/walk in memory of the Nystrom family’s friend Mike Hackman, which supports Health System mental health initiatives. He’s also very active in the community.

These lessons are not lost on the grandchildren.
He soon found the perfect way to stay active and give back – volunteering.

“Our children were engaged in community service at an early age,” said Al. “When one of us is passionate about a cause, we are all in.

“I have a lot of personal loyalty to the Health System. My Dad wouldn’t be here with us if it weren’t for great care and I’ve seen how Mike’s Run has brought healing to our community.

“Above that, the Health System’s heart is in the right place when it comes to delivering care to those in need,” said Al. “I don’t know who would be doing rural health care in Wisconsin if it weren’t for Marshfield Clinic. That’s something they choose to do because it’s the right thing. It’s on us who are able to support that mission to do so for the sake of those who benefit from that care.”

Don’s experience brought that mission full circle for the Nystrom family. Thanks to the generosity of people like you, Don’s heart is beating strong once again. His family now supports Health System heart care programs in addition to volunteering and participating in events. Don knows firsthand how those programs directly impact care for patients like him.

“I am doing very well. My wife and I are happy. I’m extremely grateful to the medical staff and physicians at Marshfield Medical Center,” said Don, “and I just enjoy every day.”

Imagine a world without vaccines. Few give thought to diseases like smallpox, measles and whooping cough thanks to vaccine development and administration on a global scale. Smallpox was eradicated in the 1980s but measles, whooping cough, flu and other diseases continue to pose a risk for families in Wisconsin and beyond. Vaccines play a critical role for preventing these diseases.

That’s why the Center for Clinical Epidemiology and Population Health (CCEPH) team at Marshfield Clinic Research Institute works tirelessly behind the scenes to monitor vaccine safety.

“Vaccines face a tougher safety standard than most medications because they are given to healthy people, including children,” said Dr. Edward Belongia, CCEPH director. “Safety is the highest priority and the anti-vaccine movement continues to undermine public trust by making false claims. The public needs to know there are monitoring systems in place to make sure vaccines are both safe and effective. That’s where our team comes in.”

Through CCEPH, Marshfield Clinic Health System is one of seven health care systems participating in the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC)-funded Vaccine Safety Datalink (VSD). Researchers in the VSD network analyze health care and immunization data to monitor the safety of vaccines in the real world after licensure.

Other VSD sites include HealthPartners in Minnesota and Kaiser Permanente health care systems in Washington, Oregon, California and Colorado. More than 10 million people, including many in central Wisconsin, contribute data to support these vaccine safety studies.

“When a vaccine has been approved by the Food and Drug
Vaccine safety research at CCEPH is supported by a grant from the CDC, but people like you contribute to our scientific mission through gifts to the Research Institute’s Summer Research Internship Program. For several years, CCEPH summer interns have worked with our scientists on vaccine-related research.

Administration and used in the general population, we act as quickly as possible to monitor safety data in near-real time,” said James Donahue, Ph.D., CCEPH project scientist.

CCEPH evaluates vaccine safety by linking electronic health records with vaccination records, said Dr. Donahue. The team analyzes data to see if there is an increased risk of certain adverse events after vaccination. For example, Marshfield led a VSD study to examine the risk of a blood clot after receiving flu vaccine (no increased risk was found).

The Marshfield VSD team is actively engaged in a large number of safety studies, including a current study to monitor the safety of the new shingles vaccine (Shingrix). Other notable work by CCEPH includes vaccine safety studies on measles, mumps and rubella and human papillomavirus. The safety of vaccines during pregnancy is another major focus and the CCEPH team has led several studies on this topic. Information from these studies is used by physicians, public health agencies, policy makers and the FDA.

Vaccine safety research at CCEPH is supported by a grant from the CDC, but people like you contribute to our scientific mission through gifts to the Research Institute’s Summer Research Internship Program. For several years, CCEPH summer interns have worked with our scientists on vaccine-related research.

“Our interns have been an incredible addition to help us analyze data and increase our scientific productivity,” said Huong McLean, Ph.D., CCEPH research scientist. “We are so thankful to everyone who supports this program so we can educate the next generation of young scientists while furthering our research.”

Though the CCEPH team spends most of its time out of the spotlight, the team’s vaccine safety research impacts the daily lives of Health System patients and people like you nationwide.

“Public trust and confidence are essential for our national immunization programs. Our role at CCEPH is to conduct high-quality vaccine research and communicate those results. This guides evidence-based vaccine policies and helps to counter misinformation put out by anti-vaccine groups,” said Dr. Belongia. “Vaccines have saved millions of lives and MCRI will continue to be a leader in vaccine research in the coming years.”

James Donahue, Ph.D., CCEPH project scientist, was honored with the Gwen D. Sebold Fellowship for Outstanding Research in 2018. See page 19 to read more.
2019 Miracle Children tell their stories

Every minute, 62 children enter a Children's Miracle Network (CMN) Hospital for treatment.

For those kids, your support of CMN Hospitals provides specialty care, state-of-the-art equipment, support programs and care beyond treatment.

As one of 140 CMN Hospitals in the U.S. and one of only four children’s hospitals in Wisconsin, Marshfield Children’s Hospital physicians and staff know nothing is more important than the health and happiness of our littlest patients. They offer more than 30 pediatric specialties as well as Child Life, Music Therapy and other services – for the love of kids.

Each year, children from northern and central Wisconsin are chosen locally to represent kids treated at Marshfield Children’s Hospital. This year, our Miracle Children – Morgan, Michael, Amaya, Isaac and Noah – have their own stories to share and one thing in common. Their stories are made possible because of support from people like you.
Morgan Halls

AGE: 11  HOMETOWN: Stanley
FAVORITE THINGS: Drawing, singing, acting and playing video games

It’s impossible not to smile around Morgan. You might find her lighting up a room by singing, acting or telling jokes. There’s one thing you’ll never see Morgan do, though. She never, ever gives up.

Since Morgan’s diagnosis of scoliosis with Sprengel deformity - she refers to it as “bent bones” - Morgan is determined to live life to the fullest. The 11-year-old girl has spent much of her young life in Marshfield Children’s Hospital for her condition, but she has never let that dampen her spirit.

Thanks to your gifts that help provide specialty care at Marshfield Children’s Hospital, Morgan got new magnetic rods in her back to help her move more freely and reduce the number of procedures she will need. Child Life Specialists, funded 100 percent through your support, have always nurtured her creativity and acting abilities while she’s in the Hospital.

Morgan has big dreams for the future but not to become an actress or singer. She is so inspired by her caregivers at Marshfield Children’s Hospital that she wants to become a nurse.

What better way to spread smiles than helping other kids like her?

Michael Bluell III

AGE: 7  HOMETOWN: Wisconsin Rapids
FAVORITE THINGS: Basketball, soccer and fishing

Michael is a typical 7-year-old boy.

He loves to play outside and get dirty. He can play basketball or soccer all day long. Nothing slows Michael down, not even cancer.

When Michael was just two months old, he was diagnosed with Stage 4S neuroblastoma. His diagnosis led to stays at Marshfield Children’s Hospital over the next two years, including six months in the Pediatric Intensive Care Unit.

His family, friends and cancer care team at Marshfield Children’s Hospital made sure Michael had access to the best treatments possible and did everything they could to make the Hospital feel more like a home. Your support made that possible, too.

Thanks to you, Child Life Specialists brought Michael toys and encouraged him to play. They hosted a first birthday party for him at Marshfield Children’s Hospital and, they were there on Michael’s “graduation” day in August 2018 when he was declared “no evidence of disease.”

Now, when Michael is chasing a soccer ball or casting his fishing line he’s not thinking about those years in treatment. He’s just being a kid.
Amaya Roberts
AGE: 6 HOMETOWN: Stevens Point
FAVORITE THINGS: Playing outside, spending time with family and doing artwork

Caring, kind-hearted and bright.

That’s how Amaya’s mom describes her now-6-year-old daughter. This thoughtful child loves spending time with her family, learning at school and telling stories. But Amaya’s own story started in an unexpected place, the Neonatal Intensive Care Unit (NICU) at Marshfield Children’s Hospital.

At just shy of 27 weeks pregnant, Amaya’s mom suddenly developed HELLP syndrome and severe preeclampsia. An emergency delivery followed at Marshfield Children’s Hospital. Amaya weighed just 1 pound, 14 ounces when she was born. Her premature delivery put her at risk for developmental delays, visual impairments and possible cystic fibrosis or cerebral palsy.

Amaya spent 83 days in the NICU until she reached just over 7 pounds. She was nurtured by your support that provided specialized NICU equipment like a Giraffe Warmer. Marshfield Children’s Hospital staff was always there to welcome Amaya’s parents by the end of their stay, doctors, nurses and staff felt like family.

Amaya is happy and healthy today. Her family is there for her as she continues to learn and grow. As for Amaya, she shares her gentle nature with everyone she meets. She knows from experience that sometimes a kind word or a small gesture can make all the difference.

Isaac King
AGE: 9 HOMETOWN: Rhinelander
FAVORITE THINGS: Downhill skiing, swimming, playing with his seven siblings and visiting his friends at the fire department

Isaac is an adventurer, exploring the outdoors, downhill skiing, fishing or swimming. He is energetic and outgoing but most of all he is brave since it takes courage to fight cancer.

In the summer of 2015, Isaac’s mom grew concerned when he failed to recover from a simple cold, becoming pallid and lethargic. After a visit to the family doctor Isaac was rushed to Marshfield Children’s Hospital and was diagnosed with acute lymphoblastic leukemia. He was just 5 years old.

The next three years brought many visits to Marshfield Children’s Hospital for chemotherapy, blood transfusions and infection treatments, with specialized pediatric cancer care made possible because of people like you. Throughout his treatment, Isaac never once cried.

Child Life Specialists, funded through your gifts, helped Isaac cope with procedures and encouraged him to play. Isaac sang and played along with Music Therapists to calm his anxiety. On long treatment days, you provided Isaac’s family with meal tickets so they could stay close by their son at the hospital.

Even though Isaac completed his treatment in fall 2018, he still uses his bravery beads from Children’s Hospital staff to help tell his story.

Isaac’s experience has made him wise beyond his years with compassion for those around him. Thanks to his family, care team, people like you and his own inner strength Isaac is ready for the next great adventure.
Noah Eckelberg

AGE: 15  HOMETOWN: Marshfield

FAVORITE THINGS: Spending time outside, camping, fishing and telling jokes

When you see Noah joking around with his friends or enjoying the great outdoors, you don’t think about the fact that he’s in a wheelchair. All you see is his infectious smile, kindness and strength.

Noah was born with spina bifida, a condition that causes the spinal cord to form incorrectly. He has undergone 19 surgeries at Marshfield Children’s Hospital to help him manage his condition. Noah also has a shunt to control his hydrocephalus, a complication of spina bifida that causes fluid to build up in the brain. He has used a wheelchair since he was in kindergarten and uses crutches and braces to walk.

Child Life Specialists at Marshfield Children’s Hospital, because of your gifts, worked with Noah and his family to help make his procedures easier. They played games to distract him and explained surgery processes to him and his parents.

Instead of focusing on his challenges, Noah’s family, friends, teachers and the care team at Marshfield Children’s Hospital found ways to help him live life to the fullest.

Now in high school, Noah is passionate about helping others. He often shares his story with kids and parents to raise awareness of his condition and prove that with grit, determination and a sense of humor, anything is possible.

Because of your support for Children’s Miracle Network Hospitals, kids can still be kids at Marshfield Children’s Hospital until they are well enough to go home.

Your gifts provide:

• New pediatric equipment
• Child Life Services and Expressive Therapies
• Direct assistance to families
• Giraffe and Panda Warmers (NICU and Birth Center)
• Infant transport equipment
• Music Therapy
• Distraction items and educational tools, including virtual reality goggles and patient puppets

For people living with multiple sclerosis (MS), diagnosis and treatment of this chronic disease is a series of unknowns.

This often disabling disease attacks the central nervous system through the brain and spinal cord. Symptoms may be mild, like numbness in the limbs, or severe, like paralysis or vision loss.

Answers to questions about MS have long eluded the medical community and researchers continue to look for those answers. Thanks to your support of new research at Marshfield Clinic Research Institute, clues are beginning to emerge from an unlikely place – the gut.

“For years, so much research has focused on genetics and the role of people’s DNA in their health,” said Sanjay Shukla, Ph.D., co-principal investigator and senior research scientist at the Research Institute. “Now, we are finding the gut microbiome might play just as big a role as genetics and environment in determining risk factors for diseases like MS.”

The human gut is home to trillions of bacteria, good and bad, that can affect physical and even mental health. The goal of this research study, led by principal investigator and Neurologist Dr. Paula Aston, is to determine if MS is associated with changes in the gut microbiome.

In recent years, some types of gut bacteria and/or changes in the number of gut bacteria have been linked to chronic inflammatory diseases including MS. With this research, Aston and Shukla want to learn more about gut bacteria in human health and disease, particularly in MS.

Sanjay Shukla, Ph.D., and Terrie Kitchner, along with Dr. Paula Aston (not pictured) are investigating the microbiome’s role for patients with multiple sclerosis.

This study will look at and compare the types and number of unique gut bacteria between different MS patient groups and non-MS patient control groups. Once fully enrolled, the research project will include 250 people with MS and 50 people without MS from Marshfield Clinic Health System’s patient population.

“The cause of MS is still unknown and that’s scary for a lot of people diagnosed with the disease,” said Terrie Kitchner, Marshfield Clinic Research Institute research coordinator. “By participating in this study, they know they are helping us find answers to better treat this debilitating disease, even if they may not directly benefit from discoveries we make. That’s pretty amazing.”

Your gifts to research help make this study possible. For example, donations and proceeds from the Pedal for a Cure MS Bike Run, which raised over $14,000 in 2018 alone, help recruit patients for the study and offset laboratory costs.

Memorials, Honors and Shining Stars will now appear once per year in the annual report BenchMarks edition each Spring.

Please contact MCHS Foundation at giving@marshfieldclinic.org or 800-858-5220 with any questions.
Michael is a typical seven-year-old boy who loves to play basketball, soccer and go fishing. He is also a cancer survivor.

When Michael was just two months old, he was diagnosed with Stage 4S neuroblastoma. You made it possible for Michael to receive specialized cancer care and access Child Life and Expressive Therapies at Marshfield Children’s Hospital. When Michael graduated from treatment, you were a part of his success.

Thank you for helping kids like Michael.

Visit marshfieldclinic.org/cmnh to give to support kids like Michael or mail your gift using the envelope in this publication.
