Director's Discourse

Welcome once again to the fall edition of The Scope, a Division of Education publication for the residents, fellows and other learners of the Marshfield Clinic Health System (MCHS).

It is an exciting time for the MCHS! We are in the process of major expansion, the former St. Joseph's Hospital is now the Marshfield Medical Center. In the city of Eau Claire, MCHS is building a hospital. It was also just announced that MCHS is formalizing a plan for a surgical hospital in the city of Wausau. Numerous other structural and System changes are happening as well, all to improve the care we provide to our patients.

As a result of these changes and our reaffirmed commitment to education, the former Ministry St. Joseph's/ Marshfield Clinic Resident Programs are now the Marshfield Clinic Resident and Fellowship Programs. Our commitment to education extends to nursing with the University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire College of Nursing and Health Sciences at Marshfield Clinic as well as the School of Radiography and the Nuclear Medicine Technology Program. Education has been a part of the Mission of the Marshfield Clinic for decades and will continue with the MCHS.

Special welcome to our new interns and residents. By now I hope you feel comfortable and well within your respective program. Residency is exciting, rewarding, challenging and, almost always, it is fast. Your time in training will pass by more quickly than you may like. Occasionally, step back and reflect on the moment. Appreciate what you are doing, the patients you encounter, and most importantly, the privilege of being a provider.

During training, your fellow residents, faculty, directors and administrators are there to help. If you need additional help or if you are having trouble adjusting to the myriad of changes that are happening, please feel free to contact the Resident Well-Being Committee (RWBC), a confidential resource for our learners.

Again, welcome to Marshfield — this academic year will certainly be exciting!

RWBC Welcomes Residents/Fellows to the Community

Medical education is a foundational component of the Marshfield Clinic. Our new residents exemplify this very well. Their enthusiastic desire to learn reflects the dedication to learning that our founding physicians made over 100 years ago. Our residency programs benefit all of us for our own learning and for the excellent care we provide as a teaching medical center. So, please join RWBC in welcoming all the new residents. You are part of an important tradition and we're glad you're here.

In June we celebrated resident graduation. The large gathering demonstrated how each resident's success involved a community of support. That community included residency faculty and staff and families and friends.

No resident can succeed in training in isolation. This is where we, as a medical community, have an important role with new residents. National studies consistently identify first-year residents as most vulnerable to adjustment difficulties, including emotional and performance concerns. This is due to the many changes new residents make including moving to a new area with its own particular culture, increased distance from family and friends and new roles as medical residents rather than medical students.

So how do we support new residents? RWBC has several suggestions:

1. Introduce yourself and welcome new residents. Taking the time to do this reinforces the sense of community, of having a role here and being valued.
2. Offer tips on working in the medical system and living in the community. Your suggestions will help residents adapt more quickly and begin to connect at work and in town.
3. Offer to be part of their neighborhood watch (see RWBC website for more info). If you see a resident looking a bit puzzled, offer to help. Doing this reinforces that we expect residents to join us to learn, not to already be experts. If a new resident appears to be struggling, ask them how they are doing, offer to listen or suggest they check out the RWBC website or contact RWBC for a confidential consultation.

In 1916 six physicians chose to join together to form a group practice. They named it not for themselves, but for the community they lived in. The medical community they created is what, 100 years later, our new residents join. Let's all carry on the tradition and welcome our new residents to the community.

MCHS Completes Purchase of Marshfield Hospital

As seen on Marshfield Clinic's Internet Site: <https://www.marshfieldclinic.org/news/news-articles/purchase-of-marshfield-hospital-complete>

July 1, 2017—Saint Joseph's Hospital now called Marshfield Medical Center

Marshfield Clinic Health System today marked an exciting new chapter with the completed asset purchase of Saint Joseph's Hospital in Marshfield.

The 500-bed hospital, now called Marshfield Medical Center, together with the Clinic, provides complete in-patient and outpatient care for central Wisconsin and beyond. The hospital purchase also adds approximately 1,200 employees to MCHS.

"This is a wonderful day for the Marshfield community," said MCHS CEO Dr. Susan Turney. "The Clinic and hospital are part of the very fabric of Marshfield and represent an enormous percentage of the local workforce. We now have certainty that those jobs will stay in Marshfield, and the community will continue to have world-class clinical and acute care."

The completed purchase follows the April signing of a definitive agreement between MCHS and Saint Joseph's Hospital of Marshfield, Inc., an affiliate of Ministry Health Care, part of Ascension Wisconsin.

"I am deeply grateful to the community for its patience, our leaders for their persistence and all of our employees for making this day possible. Without their support, we never could have reached this moment," Turney said. "I also want to welcome our hospital employees who we have long known and called our colleagues. Thank you for your dedication to patients throughout this process and for coming aboard with us as we embark on a new journey."

A ribbon cutting ceremony and community celebration was held 4-7 p.m. Wednesday, July 12, at Marshfield Medical Center.

For 100 years, Marshfield Clinic has been a leader in providing high quality health care, research and education. The addition of the Marshfield hospital allows MCHS to provide the full continuum of care, the opportunity to enhance patient experience and better control patient costs.

MCHS also operates Lakeview Medical Center in Rice Lake, and co-sponsors Flambeau Hospital in Park Falls with Ministry Health Care. Construction of a cancer center and hospital in Eau Claire is underway and MCHS is pursuing hospital opportunities in Minocqua and Ladysmith.
